RealSpot

Suzanne Martin

Founder and CEO

Let's take the power back and start loving ourselves, our neighbors, and helping our communities. Document your REAL life, present your REAL self , preserve your REAL memories.

Suzanne Martin deleted her social media accounts years ago after going through a traumatic personal experience because she felt it was taking away from her life rather than improving it. After a while, she eventually became the best version of herself by doing this. There was peace, but there was also a detachment between her and the events going on in the community, something that many legacy platforms are known for.

The concept for the smartphone app RealSpot emerged after what Suzanne refers to as a "rock bottom and an affirmation." She describes how she changed from being a social butterfly to literally bleeding from the nose in life. She began painting everything after discovering that music could heal her. She layered thousands of songs onto abstract art that spoke the phrases she needed to speak on her bathroom walls and doors. These enormous paintings quickly combined lyrics with the Polaroid pictures she was shooting every day. She wanted her kids to know that this was their life, not just a gallery of matted and framed pictures that you see on a staircase.

But at the same time as her oldest son's obsession with social media began to intensify, she was also searching for a platform that would safeguard mental health and involve businesses and the community. One of the major issues facing our world today is the social dilemma, which is aptly highlighted in the Netflix documentary of the same name. Suzanne has provided the social media experience that the masses have been longing for—one in which positivity and authenticity rule.

Suzanne Martin

The CEO of RealSpot, Suzanne Martin, is changing how we record and share life's special events. RealSpot invites users to take fast photos of their favorite locations, appreciating the spontaneity of the moment without the expectation of perfection. The platform was inspired by the simplicity of disposable cameras. RealSpot's philosophy is to free people from the weight of criticism and overanalyzing so they can completely engage in the present while building a sense of communal support.

The mission behind RealSpot

Small businesses are dealing with never-before-seen difficulties in these unsettling times. RealSpot wants to enable users to contribute to the success of local companies because it understands the critical role they play in creating dynamic communities. Through this channel of communication users act not only as active witnesses of their life paths but also become true representatives of the firms they sincerely support which helps local businesses on their long way to the recognition of their audiences.

RealSpot's cutting-edge features enable people to get an emotional feel of their surroundings by having an engaging relationship. Users belonging to this feature can get updated and excited about trendy destinations close to them by just tapping on the "vibe" page which will suggest to them the hottest places. Social media in business is a major facilitator of storytelling whereby customers who share images of products add to the big story of every business which grows its visibility and influence in the community.

RealSpot stimulates people to understand the special narratives of the neighborhoods where they live and identify the power in imperfections. Also, it is the symbol of authenticity and achieving the connection. Better than a photography app, RealSpot is because of its value-oriented platform, it encourages the co-creation mode among its members.

We had the opportunity to hear from Suzanne herself and continue reading to learn more.

Q. What motivated you to create RealSpot?

RealSpot was founded to capture the essence of moments free from the burden of perfection. I wanted to establish a platform that honored genuineness and spontaneity in a world where social media influencers and carefully selected photos rule the scene. This mindset was perfectly embodied by the concept of a disposable camera, which captures life as it happens, pretense-free.

Q. RealSpot is bringing small enterprises and regular people on an even playing field. How are they cooperating for the good of their communities and one another?

Companies now have another accessible, democratized method of connecting with the community and fostering genuine experiences. RealSpot gives residents of a town the power to decide its financial future by democratizing influencer marketing for small companies in two ways. This is achieved through a platform that is impervious to manipulation or photo-shopping. By working together, they're not only improving the town as a whole but also giving the locals a means to augment their income by simply taking pictures of their daily lives. Motivating in every way.

Q. Along with earning money, users can become RealSpot community ambassadors and have fun. How does one go about doing this?

These users are known as "Spotters." Photographs are taken by spotters around the neighborhood. Businesses that participate and pay $25 a month for visibility and incentive reveal will have their photographs posted on the Vibes page with simply their name as a caption. Each customer i.e. a spotter and business has information capturing QR code. The QR code can retain an influencer just like a fingerprint and enables impeccable AI reporting of the community activities undertaken by the influencer every day. When a friend joins the room a partner person comes in and quickly captures a picture and then the counter starts ticking, showing the amount of growth that happens when their souls meet.

Q. Could you elaborate on the details of RealSpot's "vibes" feature?

Hotspot of-the-moment discovery is exactly what the "vibes" feature of RealSpot is designed to deliver as it guarantees that the user is always informed about the trending hotspots in one's neighborhood. The vibes page would help readers select any place to come and cheer up such as a just-opened cafe or a local party. This is no less critical as it encourages community engagement and open-mindedness, as it brings an environment of education and entertainment under the same safari.

Q. When using RealSpot, what message do you want users to remember?

In the end, we are positive that users will be enthusiastic to see a vital point of commonality among their communities as well as preserve the richness in imperfection. RealSpot is, indeed, more than taking pictures; it is about preserving long-lasting memories and sharing them with people in a way that promotes not only positivity but also encouragement. It is our aim that people will have the confidence to change their communities and generate lifelong experiences.

National Sales Director

BIG Inventory, Inc

Professional hospital inventory services utilize special skill sets which are developed over a consistent series of hospital inventories.

Big Inventory, with its electronic Inventory System that uses the most current and cutting-edge premium services, is the leading name that promotes healthy living. Founded in 1985, with top EIS-assisted merchants in every state in the US, we transitioned from financial Inventory to UPC-based inventories. Located in Virginia Beach, VA, the company ensures that the customers experience the most excellent satisfaction using its products and services.

They founded BIG Inventory, Inc. and created a novel approach called BERTHA (Bringing Employees, Resources, and Technology to Hospital Audits) (BERTHA Implementation Group). Hospital inventories became a focus for Electronic Inventory System management after discovering a significant unmet need and finally dedicated all of their efforts to them.

To know more about the aims and objectives of the company. To learn more, continue reading!

1. When did you realize you wanted to launch your own business?

Even as a child, I had my own small "businesses ." From the beginning, we conceptualized a comprehensive and fully integrated company offering high-quality services to all customers.

2. How long has Big Inventory operated by you?

From the outset, we struggled to operate this firm and finally became successful.

3. How do you think this enterprise will succeed?

The key to business success is to have a great professional team that strives to offer disruptive products that meet unmet needs.

4. What challenges did you confront in starting the organization?

We had to create all new techniques and software to improve and support those techniques because we were approaching the physical inventory process from a whole new angle. For example, we wanted to make it possible to guarantee the correctness and give our healthcare customers a simple way to check that accuracy. As a result, we created a LIVE MONITORING mechanism in our program. A QA Monitor is always there to monitor the Inventory in REAL TIME while disputing counts and soliciting information to guarantee accuracy. Additionally, the hospital can perform as many spot inspections as they need because the QA Monitor can deliver Audit Reports minutes after an area has been finished.

5. How long does it take to get recruited at BIG Inventory from beginning to end? What are the stages of the process?

Several interviews are conducted by BIG Inventory to weed out the prospective applicants. The candidate must know the amount of travel they will be doing during the process. After being chosen, the candidate must pass a thorough background investigation and have the PPD, FLU, and primary COVID immunizations. The newly hired person must be taught about our system, counting methods, and all expectations after being onboarded. They will be given the go-ahead to access our system on their own once they have mastered the fundamentals. Any suspicious entries will be closely scrutinized and questioned by our QA Monitor. The new hire will eventually be weaned from their mentor and work independently.

6. How would you characterize BIG Inventory's working environment and culture?

Our people are quite diverse and are located throughout the United States. They travel extensively and work as a team.

7. Have you ever put tactics into practice that enhanced inventory procedures?

BIG Inventory has a significant advantage in that we can quickly put new ideas or software improvements into practice when they help a hospital or hospital. In addition, all our software is made internally, so modifications are considerably more straightforward than going through a separate software provider.

8. How do you figure out how much stock a company needs?

We do not figure out how much stock a company needs. Instead, we supply accurate on-hand inventory data in a comprehensive format—allowing the hospitals to make intelligent decisions about stock requirements.

9. What do you consider to be your greatest accomplishment as an inventory manager?

We are inventory takers, not managers. But our detailed reports and supporting analytics aid our hospital customers in determining their current inventory status area by area, and their consumption data, they can accurately project their future needs.

10. How can you manage to make errors at work?

It is a real key to the success of BIG Inventory. We have an on-site Project Manager and an off-site Quality Assurance Monitor, each of which can see the Inventory in REAL TIME. They work together to identify potential errors and validate the accuracy of the Inventory progress rather than trying to figure it out in hindsight.

11. What goals did you have when you first launched your business? Did it change over time?

Our initial focus was solely on perfecting BERTHA, our proprietary software. As a result, bringing Employee Resources and Technology to Hospital Audits is referred to as BERTHA. Our current objective is to offer this exceptional service to as many hospitals around the United States as possible.

12. What distinguishes you as a top performer in this field?

Since its founding in 1985, BIG Inventory has assisted national retailers with their transition from financial accounting to department/class inventories, internal SKUs, and ultimately to the then-little standard known as UPC. Small mall retailers to big box national merchants were represented in the inventories. BIG Inventory eventually started assisting healthcare facilities and is fully committed to serving that sector.

Today, with its unique and proprietary software, BIG Inventory has positioned itself as the leader in physical inventories in the hospital setting. Based on a number of inventories performed at different facilities, the estimated market share is growing at the rate to make BIG Inventory not only the technological and system leader but also the market share leader.

Most of the growth is related to the advantage BIG Inventory's system brings to the Inventory-taking solution.

13. How does your team manage to deal with and adapt to certain situations that occur unexpectedly, and what do you do when things are not as purposeful as intended?

Many course corrections are expected with any business, and the goal should always be to stay focused on your customers' needs. It is non-negotiable. Suppose there are necessary modifications, no matter the complexity. In that case, it is the CEO's role to ensure that these changes occur so that there is little to no disruption to the business, its affiliates, or stakeholders. We deal with problems systematically and deliberately so that once it is determined that an issue is on the horizon, we assess the scenario from a 360-degree angle. Hence, we are ready to pivot accordingly. In addition, we approach these types of situations as a team and work through changes in real-time, so we do not lose valuable traction.

13. At what stage is your company?

We are a Virginia-based Corporation.

14. In 10 years, where do you envision your business and yourself?

Nothing but the continued rise in our market share is what we observe. Our objectives are straightforward: remain within our specialized field, develop, and put it into practice. We are giving as many facilities access to this first-rate service as feasible.

Our Vision to have the best products, created and managed by the best team, drives us every step of the way. Therefore, we operate with a very systematic approach and are committed to continual improvement every day.

What are our thoughts?

Big Inventory was founded on a unique vision with the aim to fulfill unmet medical needs that are literally changing people's lives.

Some people have claimed that what we are doing is a true miracle. Through millions of products and thousands of services, BIG Inventory gives a platform where technology is responsible for miracles, and it is the most conclusive way to make the claim that they are exceptional in nature.

Before your hospital inventory's scheduled date, BIG Inventory decides to rigorously work on your data to eliminate or reduce duplication, manufacturer naming errors, and UOM problems. Each company was developed to meet specific needs, but this platform technology envisions endless possibilities.

"The model is the perfect solution for many centralized inefficiencies," says, Biokript's founder, Adnan Alisic,

The first Shariah-compliant cryptocurrency trading platform in the world, Biokript, intends to transform and expand the cryptocurrency market. This blockchain-based platform promises to make consumers the owners of their crypto assets and prevent a failure similar to FTX, which costs customers billions of dollars in losses.

The idea for Biokript was conceived in 2017 after the team learned about the inefficiencies of centralized crypto-trading platforms. The whole cryptocurrency movement started with a desire for decentralization where the middle-man is eliminated, and users are in full control of their funds. However, most crypto trading is done on a centralized platform, which is not the most secure or efficient way to do business. Fully decentralized exchanges were out there, but they needed to be more efficient, secure, and affordable to trade because of the slippage. Because they are fully decentralized, anybody could create a token such as a honey pot, rug pull, or a straight-out scam. In 2022, users lost over $2 billion to fully decentralized platforms. And that is how Biokript started!

Talking about the goals, the primary goal of Biokript is to bring the whole crypto industry back to its foundation, which is to give people full control over their crypto in a safe and secure decentralized manner while still giving them the option to trade with efficiency and sufficient liquidity of a centralized platform.

The second goal is to provide

Shariah-compliant cryptocurrency investing to millions of Muslims worldwide.

We asked them why Biokript was started. What was the reason behind it?

Biokript was started to restore the true spirit of the cryptocurrency movement, where middle-man and centralization of power are eliminated, and users are in full control of their crypto. History bears witness that centralized cryptocurrency exchanges are inefficient and insecure. We had seen what happened with the centralized crypto exchange Quadriga. People entrusted their funds to a centralized platform, and they lost everything. Same thing with Celsius. Voyager. Babel Finance and many others. And just recently, FTX, one of the largest centralized cryptocurrency exchanges in the world, lost $10 billion of users' funds, which was the main reason for the crypto crash. And this will keep happening until someone provides a solution. And that solution is Biokript.

Biokript is a non-custodial crypto exchange, which means they do not hold any funds. They allow traders to trade with the safety and security of a decentralized platform where they fully control their funds but with the efficiency and ease of a centralized platform. Their first target audience is those who have lost funds with centralized platforms or despise centralization. The second group of people is Muslims worldwide who want to invest in crypto but are reluctant because of the Shariah-compliance issues.

"We are a blockchain-powered cryptocurrency platform which runs on a set of smart contracts where trades are executed. Unlike other centralized exchanges where people have to entrust their funds to a centralized entity, with Biokript you can just connect your decentralized wallet where you have full control of your crypto and trade with a centralized efficiency."

What makes Biokript different?

As Biokript is the world's first hybrid, Shariah-compliant cryptocurrency platform and with us, all of our investors are our partners, where they are getting 50% of all the profits generated by our exchange based on Islamic Mudarabah, profit-sharing principles. All they have to do is hold our native BRKP token, and automatically they will get monthly profits distributed to their wallets. The crypto industry is still in its infancy. A few years ago, all those banks and other big institutions were talking against crypto, saying it is fraud and everyone should stay away from it. But now we see all those big names entering the industry and trying to take the piece of the cake. So that tells you there is great potential

Because of all those centralized platforms' failures, the team believes the whole crypto trading industry will shift to Biokript's hybrid model. They know centralized exchanges can not be trusted. FTX is the perfect example. They also know that fully decentralized exchanges are filled with scam projects. Just in 2022, users lost over $2 billion to decentralized platforms. So a hybrid model is the solution. The switch might take 5 years and 10 years; it might take 15 years. But in the end, it will happen.

"We have a great and passionate team who fully believes in our project and we are working hard to make Biokript a great success. We also have a very passionate community that is very engaged with our project. The FTX failure where they lost $10 billion of users' funds is a disaster for the crypto industry, but it is great news for Biokript because we are providing the solution for that exact problem." - Biokript.

The crypto industry is constantly evolving. It all started with bitcoin. Then they have blockchain-powered smart contracts that started the DeFi trend. And now, Web3 is the future, where they have a decentralized internet powered by blockchain technology which is out of reach of the giant tech companies or any government. And Biokript will be a big part of that future.

What do we have to say?

Biokript is a revolutionary new crypto trading platform set to revolutionize how people invest in digital currencies. It offers a wide range of features that make trading easier and more efficient, including advanced analytics tools, real-time updates, and automated trading strategies. The platform also has a user-friendly interface that makes it easy for beginners to get started. Biokript is designed to be secure and compliant with industry regulations, ensuring that users can trust the platform with their investments. With low fees, quick transactions, and a wide range of markets, Biokript is a great choice for anyone interested in crypto trading.

KitelyTech

Jason White
CEO and Founder

Focused on the Innovation of Technology Design, Development & Implementation

A team of professionals focused on the innovation of design and development.

KitelyTech is a one-stop destination for all your technological needs with a team of professionals. A company with highly skilled members of developers, designers, SEO specialists, writers & bloggers, and analysts are all available to exceed your requirements and expectations.

Furthermore, the professionals are mastered in each language, from HTML to CSS to PHP to Java to WordPress to Android. Therefore, it is assumed that there is no coding challenge that the team at KitelyTech cannot deal with.

The services provided by the professionals at KitelyTech include software development, web development, web designing, web and mobile applications, reporting and data analysis, graphic design, and SEO. With the eternal problems related to the widespread technology, KitelyTech has all the solutions to meet the demands of this fast and ever-changing world.

In the words or two with the CEO and founder of KitelyTech, Jason White, we got to know more in-depth views of the organization and the aims of KitelyTech; read to find them out.

Q. What is the organization all about? Tell us about it from the very start.

When I founded the company back in 2009, I had a well-reputed position in a family company that was playing well. But I always had this thing in my mind that I wanted to go off and do something of my own, which I have a passion for. And then, I quickly tried to learn the shortcomings in the technology industry in terms of transparency, hitting a milestone, or maintaining a balanced ability to communicate well.

At that point, I decided to take a step back and bring on a small team to take on the projects and steer the ship regarding quality and communication. There were a lot of hurdles and moving pieces that needed to come together, as the tech and the creative teams were required to work alongside each other. And all of that piece by piece, we created a team of skilled professionals that drive our organization and lead us to where we are now.

At KitelyTech, we provide full-service web development, branding, digital marketing, and related services. Collaborating and working with the startups and the Fortune 100 companies with our top-notch team members that count up to more than 80 now.

Q. How would you like to elaborate on the internal process of the teamwork, and how have you been able to create a balanced environment and keep everything so connected and put together during the scattered projects? Was maintaining the quality a big task for you, and how did you manage that?

According to what I believe, it is all about being process-driven. A replicable process helps you maintain consistency and ensures quality. It also enables you to rehearse and improve your work and services.

We are surrounded by people with a high level of self-analysis who are keen to work on themselves to improve their performances. And when you are in the proper growth mindset, it helps generate the real thought leaders that become the industry trendsetters. And so it always keeps the company evolving and motivates us to better our processes.

We have set up a unique thing for our team members: "safe space meetings". These meetings allow us to get to the solution of the items by keeping emotions out of sight. It helps us generate the best output as it revolves around not some mistake a person made but what is done by the team as a whole that can be improved to get things done without any hassle. It helps the members be vulnerable and search for a better solution.

Q. Working with your clients and providing them with the quality and required interactions, in every review that I have read, the clients seem to appreciate how transparent and smooth the communication process goes. How has that contributed to the reach and growth of the company? And also, how has that spiked up your reputation in being a trustworthy partner?

The team members have their roles and carry out different responsibilities daily, and if we have something to get done, we do it in a way that no one is excluded from the process. So, therefore, I believe titles are overrated, and I would remove them if I could. I might have a position as an owner, but I am just another employee as far as our team is concerned.

The path to wisdom is long, and I am still following it; as a serial entrepreneur, I start working at 4 am and finish it at 11 at night. I have succeeded, and I have failed too. The experience I gained when I was involved in over a dozen companies at different stages of life has brought in a lot of wisdom. I try to bring that experience to every project I take. I believe that if I can solve some of the business owners' problems that I have faced as a younger self, then I have done my job.

Q. How many cities do you have your headquarters in the United States?

We are working to be soon available in London with offices in downtown Chicago, New York City, Atlanta, Detroit, Austin, Charlotte, Phoenix, and Miami. Revenue tells you about the progress and the profit you are making, and that does not come from the quality of your work and the services you provide.

It is about what you are doing every day, step by step, to make progress as an individual and as a team and how to maintain the relationships with your clients. It all happens when you have robust internal processes built on a stable foundation and strong connections.

My father, who owned a successful company for over 37 years of electrical contracting, the family business I left. He taught me an extraordinary thing at a pretty young age, and it does not mean that if the wires are behind the walls, they do not exist; they need to be straight and better be perfect.

Q. Lastly, I would like to know what type of a person cannot make it up in your team and the best quality a person must have to adjust in a workplace like yours or the rate you look up to when you bring someone new to your team.

To think independently and put forward ideas is a must-have trait. But the gem for us would be a person who has a balance of independent thinking and a capacity to be coached. We require specific competencies to create a healthy environment in our company.

Still, we will never hire people who are self-centered genius types because they are hard to direct and too complicated with criticism. We want an environment where people have a growth mindset rather than a fixed one that helps us strive for perfection and makes us evolve.

Despite this, I want the people who are not just going to check for the 5:00 pm. Our team members consist of people ready to work, with no late-out or part-time mentality on our team. People tend to focus on the work-life balance, but I am more propound to the fluid integration of both. To make things more achievable and manageable. I focus on coaching the team not to create a hard on-off switch between work and life but rather to make them more integrated.

MORE ABOUT JASON WHITE

Twenty years before he started his career as the CEO of KitelyTech, Jason White became an electrical trainee for a construction company in Detroit, Michigan, 19. The company was a family business that his father owned. He still holds 10+ accreditations as an electrician.

His business met many hurdles that were followed by several other startups in various fields, offering all the common services to maximize the utility of technology. He encountered a bundle of confused people he hired from the development company.

An inappropriate work environment that led to delayed launches, inefficient project management, and un-skilled team members who did not have enough technical know-how to complete the project irritated Jason.

From a clinical testing management system (CTMS) done by KitelyTech for a multinational pharmaceutical company and a large-scale, secure communication and legal document transmission system to mobile applications downloaded by users worldwide, they master their work to whatever to put their hands on.

Hooked On Code is a boutique WordPress website agency full of brilliance, piss & vinegar. We wake up every day to cut the bullshit out of web development.

Hooked on Code, LLC

"I don't know where we'd be today without having firm core values - they inform everything we do. Our core values have evolved quite a bit over the past few years. we've gone through 3 revisions and will probably experience more as they settle." - Torre Capistran

It was a mission to eliminate the complicated and inefficient nature of building websites for B2B enterprises. The company is looking for people who care about communication, achieving targets, and focusing on the company's growth. Hooked on Code is a website agency with business and working organizations globally.

Today Hooked on Code continuously brings women into the tech industry through their HOC University Mentorship program.

Their refined no-bull process has been delivering 5-star customer satisfaction since 2014. In addition, they are proficient in creating and redesigning websites using modern and flexible tools like WordPress.

EXCLUSIVE: We got into a conversation with Torre Capistran, the Chief Executive Officer of Hooked on Code to learn more about the company and how its sensing solutions serve their customers better!

1. Please give an overview of your company. Describe your Core – offering that addresses the needs of your customers.

Hooked on Code is a clarity-focused website agency working with businesses and organizations globally. We are skilled at creating mesmerizing, functional, and easy-to-edit websites. With the help of our refined process, we have been delivering five-star customer satisfaction since 2014.

Our company specializes in making premium and responsive websites like WordPress websites. Our services include website design development, website redesign, website consulting, search engine optimization consulting, branding consulting, email marketing and campaign consulting, digital marketing, and the creation of E-commerce websites.

Our core value discovery started over a year ago when we began to work through traction by Gino Wickman (which is highly recommended to all business owners). We have five core values-

- Simplicity
- Authenticity
- Relentless Forward Motion
- Excitement
- Delight

The knot between our agency's purpose and our final core value reinforces the importance of both, making it easier for us to act in a way that aligns with our values and fulfills our purpose.

2. What kind of Clients do you serve? What makes your company a preferred choice among your clients over other companies?

We primarily serve B2B companies.

Some of the features which differentiate us from others are:-

- We are female-owned and run. We approach design and development differently. Our design and development all happen in the same breath.
- Our Workshop Reviews cut out the feedback loop.
- We are obsessed with efficiency.
- We strive to bring delight to projects and client relationships.
- Our team is weird, and they rock.

3. What is the role of your staff in the success of your firm?

Our team embodies our mission and core values which is essential since they are the ones who essentially keep our promises to our clients. Likewise I said before, the company is looking for people who care about communication, achieving targets, and focusing on growth.

The backbone of our company is the idea that we don't have to have different people for each task. We also have identified client-friendly processes and concrete tools that we rely on, as we keep asking ourselves during development and in tool selection.

4. What would you like to say when it comes to the straight question, of why you should be hired for the service?

So, answering that I would love to tell you that we believe in our innovation that is why people should hire us. Our innovation in the process of this old-school segmented, fractured process is what sets us apart.

This creates trust and builds a partner-style relationship. "We treat our clients the way we expect our vendors to treat us—Open, honest, bull-free communication. "We treat our clients the way we expect our vendors to treat us. Open, honest, bull-free communication."

5. Tell us something about yourself!

With a prime focus on mentorship and a passion for creating space for more women in the tech field, I led the team at Hooked On Code to develop and launch the Hooked On Code University. While unofficially started in 2015, the mentorship program celebrated its first official mentee was established in 2021 when a young mother was able to pursue her dream of entering the development industry.

After participating in the HOC University, she was hired by a global technology company and given a clear career path that will lead her to become the backend developer she has worked very hard to become.

In addition to launching the HOC University Mentorship Program, I tried to regularly make myself available to anyone interested in the industry and brainstorm how they might carve out their own space in the tech industry via virtual coffee dates/chats. Since 2015 I have scheduled 40+ such meetings with women and men from all walks of life. Many have gone on to pursue a career in the tech industry.

6. Do you have any plans for 2022 and beyond that? You would like to share with our readers?

Hooked On Code is consistently streamlining its operations with other simplified processes to create transformative shifts in the industry and improve the experience for our clients. In addition, our goal continues to be to bring women into the tech industry through our HOC University Mentorship Program.

My desire and efforts to grow and positively impact the tech industry have resulted in many initiatives. She has sought out mentorship from her peers via conferences, an EO group, business podcasts, and books. Her tremendous love of learning has resulted in a Bitchin' Books For Business YouTube series. However, I know it's not enough to learn. Implementation and practice are essential. Implementing what she has learned resulted in the following initiatives:

- Hooked on Code is also recognized as the top women-owned -business for 2022. Creating a Proven Process eliminates time and resource waste and has allowed the team to adjust as the industry experiences shifts or the client's needs change.
- Cross-training teams have enabled members to step into various roles, offer support as needed, and keep projects on schedule and under budget.

• Flexibility is surprisingly uncommon in the tech industry. I am actively striving to foster a workplace culture that allows her team to be autonomous, valued for their expertise and contributions, and challenged in their roles. This is done by encouraging round table style collaboration, holding space to experiment and make mistakes, and encouraging individual ownership of tasks and initiatives.

- Already implemented or in progress are the competitive pay, flexible schedules, take-what-you-need vacation policy, open door/open book policies, ongoing training, and paid-to-learn program

On April 17, 2022 Hooked on Code was also awarded a Silver Stevie to achieve continuous customer satisfaction.

Can you detail any specific industry-based challenges you are facing and may do shortly?

By extension, if applicable, what impact has COVID-19 had on your industry or operations? Were there any unexpected benefits or advantages to the situation you found yourself in?

In 2020, we saw project work virtually disappear with the pandemic.

Our team dedicated ourselves to the happiness of our current client base, which would if retained, support our team's salaries through the decline. We launched a Customer Appreciation Program, including Client Appreciation Week when clients were publicly recognized on social media, and a team member personally called each client. We refreshed training for the support team, compiled a new manual for working on client tickets, and started tracking client compliments and complaints so we could address any issues early on.

A bootstrapped company that started with no marketing budget, we have seen organic growth year over year entirely from referrals: $72K in 2015 to $306k in 2019.

We are most proud of one statistic: We have never missed a project launch date. Ever.

What Are You Focused On In The Next Year?

Graduating another participant and mentee from our Hooked On Code University. We are very focused on launching another woman into the tech industry, specifically website development. With a focus on mentorship and a passion for creating space for more women in the tech field, Torre led the team at Hooked On Code to develop and launch the Hooked On Code University.

While started in 2015, the mentorship program celebrated its first official mentee launch in 2021 when a young mother was able to pursue her dream of entering the development industry. After participating in the HOC University, she was hired by a global technology company and given a clear career path that will lead her to become the backend developer she has worked so hard to become.

Why Do People Want To Work With your company?

We have usually been through a redesign rebuild or creation for a website project. And it was a harrowing experience. And when we dig in with all of these potential clients, or new clients at why it felt so bad, they all say the same thing. We repeatedly hear things that go back to the standard web development process, which can be traced back to methods that were developed out of necessity when the web was new. And there weren't the tools that are available today.

And the process is to have a designer design a website. These static files are pictures, Photoshop files, or sketch files that show what the site could be once it's built. The client signs off on the design, which is then handed to a developer, and the developer's job is to take that picture and turn it into a functional website. There are check-ins (hopefully), Q&A and check out the final results.

This segmentation of the process is that designers design in a silo and developers develop in the silo. First of all, with this process, the end product is inferior because of not having these smart people collaborating and troubleshooting together. There is a solution to this out there. I think it's called collaborative design. That's not exactly what we do because that requires multiple, specialized team members to work together.

What do we have to say?

Torre and her whole team continuously strive to bring women into the tech industry. They organize various Mentorship programs and various training as it will also increase their company growth and help bring women into their team.

Torre and her team were up for the challenge and even added the guarantee clause to all project contracts in 2021. One of the secrets to the success of this initiative is clear, open communication with clients and within the team itself. Torre has empowered her team to own their areas of responsibility and focuses on always keeping clients in the loop regardless of the news being delivered.

Hooked on Code is a growing website agency that helps companies build fantastic and impactful websites. This company has many unique features which differentiate them from other companies. They provide quality service.

They are doing a great job of encouraging and empowering women. The whole team of this company is proficient and hardworking. Their mentorship programs are beneficial. Anyone who wants to redesign or rebuild their website should choose Hooked on Code company.

Finout

Roi Ravhon

Co-Founder & CEO

Finout empowers users to fully allocate their resources across their entire infrastructure, effortlessly identify inefficiencies, and generate insightful FinOps reports that save countless hours—all without the need for additional coding or agents.

AI cloud cost management is a way to lead to real-time insights into various cloud services that businesses increasingly adopt for infrastructure and applications. Monitoring and observability solutions have become critical to ensure optimal performance and reliability.

With AI Cloud cost management, businesses can monitor their cloud services in real time, troubleshoot issues, and optimize the scalability of their applications. Finout is an excellent platform managed by not one but three of its co-founders and a CEO who always aims to provide comprehensive analytics, metrics, logs, and tracing functionality. Their capabilities enable businesses to streamline their operations and quickly respond to potential incidents, ensuring that their infrastructure and applications perform at peak efficiency.

A Triumphant Journey of Finout

Before founding Finout, the CEO and Co-founders, Roi Ravhon and Asaf Liveanu, struggled to understand and manage their cloud expenses while working at Logz.io. They found that the current tools in the market were inadequate and couldn't provide clear insights into their spending. As a result, they decided to create Finout, a platform that helps businesses manage and optimize their cloud costs with ease.

Finout provides leadership with actionable insights so they can make informed decisions about their cloud spending. The realization that absolute cost measurement is incomplete without corresponding business metrics led to a shift towards measuring business value. This shift recognized the need to align cost with indicators of business success. This understanding is critical for effective decision-making and ensuring the organization's objectives are met. By measuring value instead of cost, organizations can make better-informed decisions that support their strategic goals and achieve long-term growth and profitability.

Excellence keeps track of Finout

Finout aims to create a cutting-edge enterprise resource planning (ERP) system to address the rising trend of usage-based pricing and the growing complexity of cloud providers. Their solution is designed to assist businesses in comprehending the cost and rationale behind every aspect of their operations.

By developing the ultimate modern ERP system, Finout is helping organizations optimize their resources and maximize their profits. Mapping cloud utilization cost to drivers presents challenges for both established and developing FinOps practices. It can be difficult to establish a clear one-to-one correlation, but it's vital to accurately track costs to ensure effective cost optimization.

Goals and objectives of Finout

Achieve seamless cloud management, cost allocation, showback, and waste reduction across multiple cloud services and providers with just a 5-minute integration. No need for modifying tags or coding. Streamline cloud operations for maximum efficiency and cost savings.

Monitoring your cloud spending over time allows you to identify trends and optimize usage to reduce costs and align with your business goals. Continuous optimization is the process of constantly identifying and improving processes.

Abiding optimization with Finout

Finout's MegaBill simplifies cloud cost optimization by consolidating usage-based solutions into a single platform. This streamlines cost management for all cloud services through a step-by-step approach that visualizes spend, enforces understanding of costs, and enables resource allocation.

Managing cloud spending across multiple providers and CDNs can be complex and requires visibility and control over various costs. This includes costs for computing, storage, networking, and additional services. Tools such as cost management platforms can help manage cloud expenses by providing comprehensive cost tracking, usage analytics, and cost optimization recommendations. Proper management of cloud spending can lead to significant cost savings and optimize investments in cloud infrastructure.

Enduring collaborations

Managing complex spending can be challenging as it involves coordinating and collaborating with different teams such as IT, finance, and operations within an organization. These teams may have different priorities and levels of expertise, making it difficult to align goals. Effective communication and establishing a clear plan can address these issues and ensure a streamlined approach to managing complex spending.

Having a single dashboard to track all cloud spending is crucial for effective FinOps. Cost management is a primary focus of FinOps, and this involves monitoring expenses, understanding where resources are being allocated, and optimizing usage to maximize value. By having a comprehensive overview of cloud spend, organizations can make informed decisions and ensure they are getting the most out of their cloud investments.

The Mega Bill solutions with Finout

A MegaBill, a centralized view of cloud spend in one dashboard, provides a comprehensive overview of expenses. It enables organizations to examine areas where costs can be reduced and help make informed decisions about the allocation of cloud budgets. By providing a better understanding of cloud spend, businesses can optimize cloud resource utilization and prevent wastage.

Aligning IT and finance teams in order to improve visibility, accountability, and control of cloud costs aligns with the FinOps principle of financial governance. This principle is centered on establishing a harmonious relationship between IT and finance teams for better management of cloud costs. Having a clear view of cloud spend enables businesses to identify trends and optimize cloud usage to reduce costs and align with business goals. Continuous optimization is the ongoing process of identifying improvements to cloud operations, reducing expenses, and enhancing performance. By leveraging cloud analytics and monitoring tools, companies can track cloud usage and expenditures to ensure they remain within budget and avoid unnecessary expenses. This helps organizations achieve greater efficiency, flexibility, and cost-effectiveness in their cloud operations while maximizing the benefits of cloud computing.

Clearfield, Inc.

CHERI BERANEK

President and CEO

Clearfield brings fiber to anywhere, with the ability to satisfy the unique deployment needs of the service provider, engineer and network designer. Clearfield's product design methodology offers flexibility and total configurability.

Managing fibers with Cheri Beranek of Clearfield

Cheri Beranek the President and CEO of the fiber management and connectivity company, explains behind the scenes of addition to the network capacity by tapping into new resources through a hybrid or open network where the ducting infrastructure is established for the community has an environment where they can get access to microduct infrastructure by the collaboration of alternative broadband and internet providers allowing them to provide their fibers to cater the needs of connectivity.

According to Cheri Beranek, this way allows the city to control its environment and also remember that its service providers are working with for-profit businesses that need to maintain their networks. As a result, the environment has taken shape into a model that is modular, and scalable, it allows the service provider to recognize their subscriber revenue as they manage their capital asset infrastructure.

The integration enables a lifestyle

The broadband providers and the service providers of the community including your telecom and cable providers or even alternative providers all have their assets which they want to protect. Clearfield provides a fire backhaul environment managed and accessed by the city, allowing every other service provider to do their work to their maximum potential. Without getting directly a part of the fibers providing business, Clearfield works by enabling community members to get access to better services anywhere and everywhere.

Cheri Beranek

President and CEO of Clearfield, Cheri Beranek with her extensive leadership experience and unique management style is able to deliver outstanding corporate performance under the time lapse of 14 years. Clearfield has seen years of success under her management and the company has been recognized by the Forbes' Top 100 Small Cap Company Listings with the rank 4th.

With extensive experience in nonprofit businesses that she gained while working at the Metropolitan Planning Commission of Fargo/Moorhead, the City of Fargo, and North Dakota State University, she was able to transition into networks and trichots systems to provide digital solutions impacting the community and environment.

With the vision to empower the fiber management by streamlining the vast cluttered network to provide quality, stability, and reliability of the connections, Cheri Beranek has led Clearfield to become a multinational business with more than 400 employees and more than 1000 satisfied customers.

Clearfield

Clearfield, a fiber management and connectivity company designs manufactures and distributes the fiber connectivity and management products with the aim to reduce high cost associated with network supply. The organization aims to market the fiber optic network to deliver the mobile residential and business services customers want in a reasonable price and accessible way.

Clearfield has designed a single architected modular fiber management platform with the vision to lower the cost of broadband deployment and maintenance services to enable other broadband providers, internet providers, and alternative providers to scale up their revenue by providing seamless services to grow subscribers.

5G Rollout

Because of the small cell size, to switch on from 3G 24g 25 times more fibers are required and to get transferred from 4G to 5G 16 times more fibers on the quarterly are required. After doing the simple math the count of fibers for about 1 square mile of 5G coverage requires about 8 miles of fiber.

Clearfield came after the issue of antennas to roll out 5G broadband connections which requires the convergence between wildlife and wireless. To get complete access to powerful 5G networks and to provide the latency, there must be present antennas on every other light pole to effectively pass homes and businesses with a physical wired fiber.

As compared to the 4G, 5G network is a bit complicated. To upgrade the 4G networks, big towers, large areas with fibers were upgraded at the micro site level. To roll out a 5G network the biggest obstacle comes away in permitting which does not even take too long but because of the low expectation of the community the process is time consuming and there can be no planning or executing that can be done for permitting.

As an example, to set antennas on your own light pole if you are the municipality you will be required to take the permission. The process can go beyond the time if the career once the antennas to be placed on a building in that case the permission of the building on a must be taken which poses more restrictions and limitations to the broadband and internet service providers.

Why to partner up with Clearfield?

Aside from my innovative ideas and creative solutions to network optimization, Clearfield is a client-oriented organization that listens to the problems of its clients before carrying out any decision-making. The client's needs are the top priority of the company and promotes collaboration and a sense of community to celebrate success. Recognizing the talent and skills of the team at Clearfield delivers the best solutions by utilizing the outcome of waste thinking to work towards the desired goal.

Clearfield brings quality to the table by delivering:

- Innovative designs: Scalable cyber optic management platform Clearfield is a leading provider in the industry with innovative designs that ensure maximum capital equipment growth meaning a greater rate of investments.
- Speedy fiber deployment: Clearfield is continually expanding in terms of world-class productions and operations to enable market access to product designs that take vast engineering horizons and faster fiber deployments with shortened planning time.
- Remarkably low labor costs: Clearfield has equipped connectorization to reduce the need for skilled labor by a certain percentage as compared to the 70% of fiber deployment costs that are taken up using the traditional splicing method.

Final remarks

The competition between the broadband provider and the internet provider allows the community to get enhanced services that are required by them to survive in this modern world for better connectivity. The innovative solutions empowered general requirements of the houses and businesses such as security alarms, cameras, sensors, and other safety requirements. It is all made possible through Clearfield.

Lendio

Brock Blake

CEO, Co-Founder

Lendio makes the business financing process simple and easy. Find the right lender to meet your small business's needs with our online business loan application.

Business Financing Advanced With Brock Blake

Founder and chief executive officer of a free online loan marketplace in the US Lendio, Brock Blake has financed more than 100,000 small businesses with over more than $2 billion in loans to help them grow and expand. With the help of the adaptive platform of Landio that leverages machine learning, Brock Blake is focused on creating a revolutionary path for small business owners by making business loans easily accessible and effective in the long run for their companies.

Several honors have been given to the company Lendio, including recognition by Glass Door as one of the top 50 workplaces, and a certificate of Great Place to Work by Great Workplace. Lendio has also been given a place in the list of Fortune's best workplaces providing financial and insurance services.

Brock Blake

The early life of Brock Blake involved hopping from one venture to another as he started his way from the paper route and moved higher by starting his own soccer camp business. He also ventured across the market of scooters in China purchasing them and selling them locally after which he stepped into the world of business and financing.

In 2006, Blake founded FundingUtah, which was renamed FundingUniverse in the later years before Lendio was founded. He himself encountered the struggles of financing small businesses through his experience. As the world entered the global financial crisis in 2008 it was immensely difficult for small businesses to seek capital from the US banks.

The vision behind establishing his own financing and funding platform was to provide small business owners ease to finance their startups and small businesses without struggling to fill out long applications and linger around the bank now and then. With the help of Lendio's platform, small business owners can fill out online loan applications by browsing several loan products with a network of more than 75 lenders. With Lendio, financing is done quickly and easily. Blake has invented a pitching event called CrowdPitch in the style of this new era's speed dating system allowing small businesses to pitch their deals at the best price.

Services

Many young entrepreneurs or business startups fail to gather enough collateral that can be used to get business loans from the banks. Where business requires funding at every step of the journey for starting up a new project, carrying out expanding operations, or recovering from financial loss, business loans come as a lifesaver that teaches entrepreneurs to work out the plan and keep moving forward. With this aim in mind, Lendio helps early startups and small businesses manage their cash flow by providing them the funding and loans. According to your budget and business requirements, you can choose from a multiple of loan products that are given as follows.

- Short-term loans
- Business line of credit
- Cash advance
- Equipment financing
- Startup business loans
- SBA loans
- Business Acquisition loan
- Accounts receivable financing

With Lendio a lending marketplace, you can compare options to ensure that alone matches your budget and business requirements perfectly. Such comparable loan options allow an entrepreneur to not get burdened by the loans and pay them out easily. Such a platform works in the favor of the borrower as they are free to go through the interest rates, loan terms, size, and speed of capital of multiple options to ensure maximum satisfaction from the choices they make.

Maximum benefits for your small business

With ready-to-serve capital with the landers to lend you the procedures of financing alone get streamlined. When you are considering financing for your small business you must know about the types of financing for small businesses and choose wisely the one that can benefit your business in the long-term.

Debt financing, bootstrapping, crowdfunding, and venture capital are your four options to leverage out cash for your early startup situations. Where debt financing sounds similar to traditional small business loans it offers a wider scope and secured funding. Fundings like a business line of credit, SBA loans, short-term loans, cash advances, business credit cards, commercial mortgages, equipment financing, etc are covered under debt financing.

For the people who have personal savings or some type of lineage that they can use to start their entrepreneurial grind from the start the traditional way is known as bootstrapping. With advancements in technology, crowdfunding seems an interesting concept for entrepreneurs to harness funds through online platforms. Venture capitalists is another form to finance your business, if your goal is to expand it and make it acquired by a team of thorny nerds.

Concept for the new business model

While working at FundingUniverse, Brock Blake saw that almost 98% of the business ventures were getting nothing out of the connections with VC and angel financing over which his cofounder, Trent and he paired to come up with the idea of Lendio. With Lendio they gathered a team of secured lenders to build connections with borrowers resulting in a streamlined management of loans with transparent networking. As the platform moved forward several optimizations and tests were done to create a supportive environment for the new business models. Skilled and talented team members started incorporating as the building of Lendio expanded to serve and push new business Ventures and company goals.

Strong collaborative team

Lendio nurtures passionate and creative minds that help SMBs grow and expand their reach at a global level. The adaptive loan marketplace of Lendio saves your time and effort, as the process goes down to a single application that can be filled in 15 minutes for which you avail 75+ vendors.

A skills team of experts is always on board to guide you throughout the application process and help you understand the advantages and disadvantages of different types of loans and deals you envision entering.

Path of success for Lendio

Brock Blake directs the reason behind his company's success to the creative brains of their team who are devoted to the job they perform. The greatest accomplishment of Land York Watches serving 100,000 small business owners with more than $2 billion in capital to support their big ideas, has been made possible by them all.

Lendio is constantly evolving and expanding with innovative ideas to make funding and financing for small business owners not a burdensome, but an easier process. The PPP loans or paycheck protection program launched by the organization recently is one such example that provided emergency relief funds during the adverse effects of the global coronavirus pandemic.

Final Words

Lendio's team is highly focused not only on building up the dreams and adventures of other passionate and thriving new entrepreneurs but also on serving the good through charitable programs. To support low-income entrepreneurs microloans are provided by the team to help them scale up. Charitable initiatives have also been taken to end the gender gap and encourage female entrepreneurs.

Vardags

Ayesha Vardag

Founder & President

Vardags is a top divorce and family law firm specialising in high net worth and complex cases. Our President, Ayesha Vardag has been widely described as "Britain's Top Divorce Lawyer".

One of the top divorce attorneys in the UK, Ayesha Vardag, is well-versed in high-net-worth divorces. Her company, Vardags, is a favorite of kings, billionaires, and celebrities, not dissimilar from the fictional companies depicted in The Split.

Ayesha's victory in a significant Supreme Court case that led to pre-nuptial agreements becoming enforceable in England and Wales is one of her greatest accomplishments. Additionally, she advocated for the 'no fault' divorce, which just became law in England and Wales.

We talked to Ayesha and discovered her career journey in more depth. Here is everything she discussed about the reality of working as a family lawyer.

Q. What was your driving force to scope out the field of a divorce lawyer?

It was based on my own divorce-related experience. Initially, I practiced commercial and financial law, but after my marriage ended, I engaged a divorce attorney and collaborated closely with him throughout my case. He made me a job offer after the divorce was finalized. Divorce law is interesting because you have to strike a balance between giving them stern counsel and being there for them in a trying time. To portray your client to the judge in the best light possible, it's a perfect combination to be extremely logical as a lawyer and, on the other hand, to be very creative intellectually and create a tale that is engaging.

Q. What difference is there when dealing with someone who's in the public eye from an average split?

Some clients are particularly fascinated by the media, which causes them a lot of concern. In that instance, we collaborate closely with our media and privacy department to come up with a collaborative strategy that would give them the most protection possible.

Some things are useful. We'll utilize one of the court's less-frequented entrances if we want to avoid drawing too much notice so they're off the beaten path. People frequently don't want to enter the office at all, so you have to go meet them there. I appreciate it because meeting someone where they live gives you a much better idea of who they are.

Other customers, who have felt ignored for a while, wish to share their perspectives. This is frequently the case; you have a person who has been voiceless and severely disadvantaged. It may be crucial to them that you give them the freedom to speak openly about their lives.

Q. What did you find the most rewarding aspect of your career?

There is a genuine sensation that you are improving someone's life. Your efforts are having an effect; clients are moving into better homes or, in the event of domestic abuse, are no longer being beaten. Sometimes persons who have been devoid of any independence or autonomy find themselves in a position where they can begin making their own decisions and leading their own lives. To witness that is simply so rewarding. It's an honor.

Q. How was your experience of being the first person to get a prenup upheld?

It was very thrilling. I gave that case my entire life—my heart, my soul. I had the impression that what I had accomplished had improved the legislation. I believe that people should be able to decide for themselves rather than having the government make such decisions for them. Additionally, the client felt utterly justified.

Q. What do you find the hardest part of your job?

No one can ever succeed all the time. Sometimes you only receive a portion of what a client requests. It's incredibly difficult when I can't give my clients exactly what they want, but you have to push through because you know you're doing better than anybody else could.

Q. Is the divorce law as hostile and aggressive as it seems in The Split? People can be needlessly harsh and childish, which surprised me because I'm from the field of commercial law, where such behavior is unthinkable. You must, of course, be tough. You must succeed. But being impolite or rude has no place, especially in family law, where you must act with decency.

Q. There are a lot of misconceptions related to lawyers. What is the worst misconception you can recall that you have heard about your job?

People think that money is our motivation. Family law can provide a very respectable income, but if you want to earn great money, you should move to the City. People who care about families often work in family law because doing so is gratifying on a human level.

Q. You pushed for the 'no fault' divorce that the UK just implemented. What after-results have you expected from this?

I'm hoping this is the start of a glorious new era. The whole outmoded notion that there must be blame for a marriage to dissolve is a holdover from Victorian ideals when divorce was viewed as extremely immoral and disgraceful. It is generally accepted in society that perfectly good and civilized people drift apart over time, and nobody is to blame for this.

The prior technique required you to begin by blaming the other side, which puts them on the defensive. It transforms a potentially friendly situation into one that is antagonistic. 'Oh it's daddy's fault, oh it's mom's fault' has no place and is awful for the kids. Because of this extremely dark mark between you, it makes the process of moving past the divorce, reestablishing possible friendships, and co-parenting more difficult.

Q. What is your secret to balancing having a great profession and taking care of your children as a mother of five?

At first, it was something of a matter of survival for me, but as time went on, my work proved to be quite beneficial for my family. That's not to say it's been simple; I attend school plays but not every game, I run errands for the school, and I've held parent-teacher conferences over the phone. However, since they have observed me and because I have been extremely fortunate in accomplishing a significant portion of my goals, my kids have desire and drive.

Sedona Soul Adventures

Debra Stangl

Founder

My life has taken on a devotion to service that I have never experienced before. My goal and my prayer is to assist everyone in living their best life and having the relationship of their dreams.

Relieve Your Soul With Sedona Soul

"Awarded "Best of Sedona" for Retreats 2020, 2021 and 2022 and "Best Marriage Retreats in the US", 2015-2022 - 2020."

Debra Stangl is a prime example of how second chances can happen. In 1999, she was in an unhappy marriage; she was a divorce lawyer in Omaha, Nebraska; she was depressed, 40 pounds overweight, and hated her work.

She first visited the spiritual paradise of Sedona, Arizona, through an odd series of events, where she had a spiritual reawakening that transformed her life. She shut down her legal firm and spent the following three years returning to Sedona, every other month to work with the Master Practitioners there on her healing (in the US, the word "recovery" is synonymous with alcohol or drug addiction, which was not happening with me. In 2002, she founded Sedona Soul Adventures, with the incredible healers drawn to the area from around the world.

What Is Sedona Soul Adventures?

Sedona Soul Adventures has been creating private, custom-tailored retreats for individuals and couples using a network of over 60 of Sedona's most amazing healers for over 20 years.

Their retreats are so transformational and life-changing that they were awarded the "Best of Sedona" for Retreats 2020, 2021, and 2022 and "Best Marriage Retreats in the US" 8 years in a row (2015-2022). Retreats that can save relationships and change lives are custom-designed for each person, taking you from where you are to where you want to be!

Their Master Practitioners practice

virtually all available modalities (emotional clearing, EMDR, breathwork, Radiant Heart Healing, meditation, yoga, massage, etc.).

Effective Process Of Sedona Soul Adventures

SSA's Founder, Debra Stangl, told us, "Most people live in a state of disconnection, and that is causing them a great deal of misery. Most of this disconnection started in their childhood when they took on wounds, hurts, and limiting beliefs such as "I'm not enough", "I'm not good enough", "I'm not smart enough", and "I'm not lovable", "I'll never amount to anything", "I'll never be happy", etc. These become self-fulfilling prophecies where they don't feel loved or happy and are dissatisfied with their lives.

When people contact Sedona Soul Adventures, they speak with one of our Soul Guides. The Soul Guide digs deep, talking with them about what they want. What do they want in their life? What do they want in their relationship? The Soul Guide starts the process of discovering what keeps them from living their best lives. What is keeping them from having the relationship of their dreams? The Soul Guides start the process of finding these wounds and hurts and limiting beliefs, and then they custom design a retreat based on our Sedona Proven Process, so that we discover, delete the sand release these wounds and beliefs, and then bring people back into connection on all levels – physical, mental, emotional, and spiritual.

Heal Yourself With Sedona Soul Adventures

What makes Sedona Soul Adventures Trustworthy?

"Our motto is "Transforming Lives, One Soul At A Time" and we take that very seriously. People who come to us have a deep desire to transform their lives and we want to make sure that's what we deliver to them. We are very careful in our vetting process which the Soul Guides do to make sure that people who come to us are a match for the work we do. For example, we do not work with people who are actively abusing drugs or alcohol, as we are not a medical facility (although we have worked very successfully with many people after they have gone through rehab to address the emotional and spiritual underpinnings of their addiction). So we turn away people that we believe will not benefit from our work."

Stangl says.

She continues "We assign each person a Retreat Coordinator who is connecting with them before, during, and after their retreat, to make sure that everything is going the way we want and for them to be assured that they are in a safe container.

We also include two coaching sessions after the clients go home so that we can make sure that the transformations they've had will stay with them and become part of their lives."

"One of the best ways to see how trustworthy Sedona Soul Adventures is, is to see what our clients say about us", says Stangl. We've only been on Trustpilot [the third-party verified review site], but we've already amassed over 700 5-star reviews with people saying things like "'his was life changing', 'Sedona Soul Adventures saved our marriage' or 'best money I've ever spent'. That is so incredibly satisfying." Stangl further explains that.

DEEPAK THAPLIYAL

CEO of Chain

Enter the world of Web3 with access to leading blockchain software solutions and bring your business into the new era of technology. We are reimagining the Web3 experience for brands across the globe, who wish to get a headstart in this revolutionary industry.

Headquartered in Saint Kits and Nevis suburbs, Chain is a soon-to-rise name in the blockchain industry. Even though the blockchain industry is still in its infancy, it is crucial to stay ahead of the curve by investing in a business that will offer long-term solutions once this technology becomes widely used. By acquiring Chain, the owners proudly continue the mission of establishing a more sustainable global financial system through blockchain and cloud technology.

The Chain was established in 2014. Later, it was acquired again from Lightyear Corporation in 2020 to carry out its mission of using blockchain technology to create a more interconnected and transparent global financial system.

With a new board of directors, management, and stakeholders under the direction of Chain's CEO, Deepak Thapliyal, Chain is now a privately held company.

To understand the working context of a Chain, one needs to have comprehensive knowledge of the blockchain industry and how it functions.

There are four primary types of blockchains as follows:

- A blockchain called "Public" is open to all users and lacks a central authority.
- Then there are blockchains with permissions, such as "Private" and "Consortium," managed by a particular organization or group.
- Then there are "Hybrid" blockchains. They aim to harness the most outstanding qualities of both public and private blockchain technologies or integrate aspects of both public and private blockchains.

There is a fundamental idea that underpins blockchain technology. A digital trust foundation provided by the blockchain makes it nearly impossible to alter information once it has been used for some transaction. Once transactional data has been inputted, it is virtually impossible to tamper with it, and all involved participants of the blockchain network can verify and trace each transaction. This is because the blockchain offers a digital trust platform.

Blockchain is a safe way for people to conduct direct business with one another. It is a public digital ledger of transactions that stores information securely, making it challenging to hack into or tamper with.

Blocks of records are connected using cryptography. Similar to how email is made possible by the internet, blockchain technology makes it possible for cryptocurrencies (digital currencies protected by encryption) like Bitcoin to operate. Blockchain technology has a wide range of applications, including supply chains, economics, and even entertainment.

Unlike every other industry and technical service, blockchain technology has its fair share of challenges. For instance, it is essential to stick to long-term objectives in the face of short-term fluctuations because the industry is dynamic and constantly changing.

The company has survived multiple "Crypto Winters" in its history by keeping its operations customer-focused and promptly responding to the markets. Despite how the general public sees blockchain and cryptocurrencies, the company continues to sell its services and support itself and the audience up to date on the most recent advances in the field to stay ahead.

Deepak Thapliyal, the CEO of his business, has been concentrating on acquiring new technology to broaden Chain's product and service offerings. The Chain recently received MDT (Measurable Data Token), and to give its customers more value, it has bought more services. Thapliyal, who has a background in both technology and business, handpicks the best personnel for his strong team of blockchain developers.

Deepak Thapliyal builds strategic alliances inside and beyond the NFT and cryptocurrency communities in addition to releasing the native token XCN. One of the rarest CryptoPunks owners, Thapliyal, recently worked with Tiffany & Co. chief Alexandre Arnault to develop NFTiff. It is a unique program available only to CryptoPunks owners. The well-known Web3 entrepreneur is also committed to using the power of blockchain technology to serve communities all across the world through Chain Gives, his philanthropic foundation. Due to the decentralized nature of cryptocurrencies and the blockchain, Chain Gives makes it possible to send money quickly to needy people.

The company works on certain guiding principles at the core of its functioning. First, the business is committed to innovation and using the blockchain's ground-breaking technology to create a more resilient and peer-to-peer economic system. Investors create the blockchain cloud infrastructure and encrypted ledgers that support the conventional financial sector.

Through blockchain's numerous use cases, they provide innovative solutions for businesses wishing to build a foothold on Web3.

The company has several objectives to be attained in the immediate run.
• To help top businesses in the

- retail and entertainment sectors enter the blockchain realm successfully while exceeding their business objectives through our full range of services.
- To continue building enduring relationships with companies from various industries and assisting them in achieving their Web3 objectives.
- To broaden the market reach of more retail and entertainment businesses this year while integrating them into the blockchain ecosystem.

Certain fundamental concepts underpin a blockchain and aid in removing security risks. The blockchain has a more robust line of defense against cybercriminals because it is a decentralized network. To alter a blockchain, a hacker must have more than 50% of the devices in the same distributed ledger, which is highly implausible. In addition, changing the cryptographic hashes on the blockchain or each new block would be nearly impossible, making this system unchangeable and impervious to hacking.

A surprising fact is that the blockchain system's costs can also be doubled. Blockchain can prevent attempts at "double spending" in payments and money transfers. Users of cryptocurrencies have good reason to be very concerned about these attacks. A "double-spending" attack involves a user using their cryptocurrency twice. It's an issue that doesn't arise when using money. A particular cryptocurrency's blockchain requires the entire network to agree on the transaction order, confirm the most recent transaction, and make it publicly known.

The business's success is incomplete if the CEO doesn't pay heed to his responsibilities. Deepak Thapliyal, Chain's CEO, is in charge of all business activities. He oversees the business's organizational structure and works closely with executive leaders to plan and steer its objectives. In addition, Thapliyal makes it a point to react to market volatility, which helps him stay one step ahead of the competition. He ensures that ChainChain is guided on the correct route by upholding its mission and being flexible in response to the expanding business.

He is particularly interested in hiring outstanding personnel for Chain'sChain's range of services and acquiring new business possibilities that align with Chain'sChain's goal.

In addition, Thapliyal keeps strong connections with several brands in the financial, retail, and entertainment industries and the Web3 community.

Success at ChainChain, according to Deepak Thaployal, is the capacity to benefit clients and support them throughout their Web3 journey. He wants to maintain client satisfaction by streamlining Chain'sChain's services as much as possible. Thapliyal is adopting new technologies to suit the needs of our clients better. Thapliyal works to broaden Chain'sChain's activities across various industries by acquiring new technology to better serve our clients' interests.

He prioritizes keeping the team's talent from within by assembling a talented management group that encourages employees to be adaptable, content, and great communicators.

The Chain can guarantee the most significant level of services for its customers thanks to a solid human resources staff that actively seeks out highly qualified individuals in all areas, from development to marketing.

To maximize earnings for the stockholders, ChainChain continues to reinvent its products and services. In addition, Deepak Thapliyal has formed several strategic relationships with organizations from other industries to use his platform and reputation in the Web3 arena.

Finally, he thinks that achievement is meaningless unless it is combined with giving back to the community that has supported him throughout his career. So he started "Chain Gives" to make it easier for families and communities worldwide to get funding quickly.
